The order-in-council would appropriate $300,000 for construction work.

The name "Liberal-Conservative" was proposed by Sir John A. Macdonald and has been used since that time.

Winner

Returning officers reached the platform with the result of the second ballot while a resolution on party organization was being considered. This delayed the official announcement, but a rush of platform occupants to shake the doctor's hand soon indicated the way the vote went.

FALLOW SAYS ROAD CASH NOT SHARED RIGHT

Minister Charges Alberta Did Not Get Fair Amount Of Money

Charging discrimination by the Dominion government in allocation of money from the federal appropriations for highways construction brought down in supplementary estimates, Hon. W. A. Fallow, Alberta minister of public works, on his return from Ottawa, on Thursday declared that "Alberta did not get treatment comparable to other provinces in being granted only $75,000."

Mr. Fallow declared that he could see no difficulties in the way of the cities obtaining assistance under the $20,000,000 a year liquidating works program project.

At a result of the disappointing results of his Ottawa trip, receiving only $75,000 on a total of $470,000 works program submitted, Mr. Fallow said that the province was constructing projects for that year would have to be drastically curtailed.

LONDON, July 7.—The judicial committee of the privy council today decided not to continue the hearing of appeals on the Alberta press bill and the measure to regulate credit on the ground the bills are imperative.

The judgments of the supreme court of Canada, declaring the bills ultra vires of the provincial legislature, therefore stand. Arguments on the Alberta bill in tax banks was continued.

Lord Macmillan, the lord chancellor, announced the decision in a new wave.

"We think," he said, "it would be contrary to practice and to the usual procedure adopted by the privy council, that the bills should be argued on their merits."

Japanese Premier and Chinese Leader Declaim Justness of Causes

Konoye Says Conflict Forced Upon Japanese; Chiang Views Victory

EDITOR'S NOTE: The statements below were written for the Associated Press by Japan's premier and China's leader on the occasion of the first anniversary of the outbreak of the Chinese-Japanese war, July 7.

Education In Anti-Japanese Declared Underlying Cause

By PRINCE FUMIMARO KONOYE
TOKYO, July 7.—One year ago today Japan was forced against her will into a conflict with China. Every possible effort was made to localize the incident.

Peaceful settlement was agreed upon, but never effected owing to the failure of Chinese authorities to carry it out. To avoid further complications, the Japanese government went to great pains to evaluate the situation in the various treaty ports, including Chungking, Changsha, Yehank, Hankow and even Tientsin, removing thousands of Japanese.

ACCEPTS INVITATION

Indeed it was not until after more than a month that the Japanese government finally realized the situation and accepted the invitation of the Chinese government to send an army, who had long been educated and trained in anti-Japanese propaganda, to fight Japan and were deliberately working toward that purpose. Only then did Japan reluctantly, but at the same time resolutely, decide to fight the inevitable.

Thus we see that the fundamental cause for the hostilities lies in the systematic propaganda campaign in anti-Japanese, both in the Chinese press and schools, and among the general public for many years. We take strong exception to the allegations against the Kuomintang Chinese government party government, which, under the leadership of Chiang Kai-shek, singled out one particular reason for the starting of the Sino-Japanese war.

ONLY WITH LEADERS

We are not fighting, however, with the Chinese people. Our conflict is with their leaders, civil and military, who have been audaciously manipulating the people for the sake of Japan during the last ten years. We are firmly convinced that unless we suppress the underlying cause of wrong there can be no lasting peace in the East, and for that purpose it is absolutely necessary to crush the Kuomintang government which has been manipulating the people to start the Sino-Japanese war.

CONVENTION SIDELIGHTS

OTTAWA, July 7.—It is expected the Coliseum at the Ottawa Exhibition grounds will be jammed to capacity today as the national Conservative convention winds up its three-day meeting with election of a new leader.

Maurice Dupré, co-chairman of the convention, drew a laugh at the opening of his first session. The chairman, John R. Macdonald, had been speaking of the "flames" that must have their identification cards today to receive ballots.

Sunday Broadcasting

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is to have an advisory council with which to consult on the matter of broadcasting religious services on Sunday. Why not broaden its jurisdiction and have the council study the whole question of broadcasting on Sunday? There is need that some attention be given to that subject.

If it is morally right and legally permissible for radio stations to broadcast advertising as usual on Sunday, why are newspapers not allowed to publish advertising on Sunday? It is imagined this discrimination can be maintained? No sanctity attaches to radioed advertisements as against printed advertisements. If one class of commercial institution can carry on business seven days in the week, why should another class be barred from doing so?

Newspaper publishers have not shown any desire to publish on Sunday. But that is aside from the point. The law would not permit them to do so if they wanted to. They are forbidden to "commercialize" Sunday, in the interests of public morals or in deference to public taste. Why should the Corporation do what the newspapers are not allowed to do?

Play Fair

Where applications are made for loans under the Municipal Improvements Assistance Act, it is intimated, preference will be given to projects on which a large amount of labor would be employed, while the Dominion authorities will look with disfavor on schemes which would call for inoperative labor.

Almost any municipal undertaking could be made "self-liquidating" in a sense, by adding enough mills to the tax rate to meet the interest and return charges on the loan. Perhaps some municipalities have been trying to get loans for street or other ordinary improvements by this device. That is rather suggested as being so by the warning that tax-raising proposals are not likely to get loans.

If municipal councils are wise they will conform to the spirit of the loan scheme, and not try to drag in projects which are not actually self-liquidating or which will not help materially to increase the amount of employment available to men now idle.

The purposes in view in offering the 2 per cent loans are plain. The councils will further the interests of their communities by not asking for loans not really in line with these purposes. They may want 2 per cent loans next year and are more likely to get them if they do not try to do any "chiseling" this year.

The Old Guard in Action

The Old Guard got in the first volley in the fight for control of the Conservative national convention and the shaping of the party's policy.

Senator Meighen was the "key-note" speaker. To the democratic approval of Mr. Bennett, and by arrangement with him, he struck the note most calculated to rally the followers around the traditions of the father—namely, the traditional schemes of Mr. Herriede and Mr. Stevens. "The old flag" was brought out and waved in the good old Tupper style, his hearers to doubt recalling—as they were expected to recall—that the other half of the time-endorsed slogan used to be "and the old policy."

Undoubtedly this was the strongest bid the elder statesmen could make against the threatening tide of change. They were fighting with their backs to the wall, for "sound" money, prohibitive tariff and the traditional party alliance with the privileged classes. But it would not do to champion these things openly. The convention must be steered away from the direct issue. Hence the frantic flag-waving, and the appeal to patriotism, as in the days of yore.

Why Export All of It? When the Ascania went aground in the St. Lawrence last week, its cargo included a shipment of gold worth $1,500,000. The gold had been shipped by the Bank of Canada, destined to England, to balance the trading account—that is, to pay for $1,500,000 worth of British goods.

Had the gold been kept by the Bank and money issued against it at the legal rate, there would have been created a fund of $6,000,000 with which goods to that amount could be produced in Canada and exchanged for $6,000,000 of British goods. Used in that way, the gold would have financed production to four times its value, and made possible an exchange four times as great as that effected by the export of the metal and the acceptance of goods in payment.

Of course there is a limit beyond which international trade cannot be expanded, and a limit to the amount of production and trade that can be profitably created by monetizing gold. But in neither case is the limit in any danger of being reached.

This calculation illustrates the mistake that is being made in shipping new gold out of Canada as fast as it is mined. A substantial proportion of it could be bought by the Bank and made the basis for currency in the ratio of four to one, for the stimulation of production and the expansion of trade—alike with other countries and at home.

Editorial Notes

Mr. D. M. Duggan, Conservative leader for Alberta, told the party's national convention the Social Credit movement in Alberta was "an expression of agrarian revolt." Revolt of course against the policies of the Government then in power at Ottawa. The delegates may not have enjoyed hearing this truth, but it should be regarded as a warning, charting the party's course for the future.

A gathering at Blackie, said to have numbered more than 300 persons, voted unanimously in favor of the principle of the tax on farm production. Gatherings elsewhere have declared as strongly against the idea. In a general way the production tax seems to be favored where crops are doubtful and opposed where crop failures are unknown.

Old Country Letter

By J. E. NORRIS

LONDON, Eng.—(By Mail)—The result of the Barnaby Rudge election amply avenges for the Labor party its serious reverse at Stafford. Barnaby is a Yorkshire mining town of some 70,000 inhabitants which, with one temporary aberration in Labor's bad year, 1931, has returned a Labor member ever since.

At the last general election the party's candidate, a home with a majority of 7,600. No death opened the seat and there was no expectation whatever that the government candidate, a National Liberal, would win it at the by-election.

It is all very well to talk about the apathy of the voters, but the election had been most strenuously fought and, even granting that there was no swing over to Labor, no any abstentions constitute a criticism of the government.

They may, in fact, be accounted for by the prevailing dissatisfaction with the situation in the country. The people of this country are not accustomed to see German bombers over anything being done about it and they don't like it.

The National Liberal candidate had to defend the platitude of the civil government, while it commends itself to coal-headed people who don't want to see German bombers over Britain, it is not easy to do.

Royal Assent: The peak of the London season, has been favored by the weather and the costumes for which it is famous were not hidden in some years, under wraps to protect them from the rain.

In this respect the show was more brilliant than ever, and, be it said here, if Assent is an election, frocks are going to be shorter. Sixteen inches off the ground was the prevailing length.

As usual the Royal procession was a central feature of the show, and the famous Windsor greys and escorted by a regiment of the King and Queen, drove along the Golden Mile, both smiling happily at the cheering throngs.

Other carriages, following, brought prizes and prizes and other members of the household at Windsor Castle. The scene was repeated on several successive days.

Amid all the gaily-dressed throngs of the nation's fashion plate, was the observed of all observers. She had gone back to Edwardian for her late last, wearing the skirt that Alexandra favored, and the dress, trimmed with high upstanding black cotton feathers.

Cats or Birds

There are too many cats in Winnipeg, as the Humane Society has reason to know. And there are too few birds. It is clearly a case of cause and effect, and something should be done about it.

In Staveland, Alberta, the same conditions once prevailed. But in 1908 the town council of Staveland, imbued with the humane spirit, decided to try anything once, passed its now famous Cat Belling bylaw.

It is perhaps natural that such a bylaw should provoke humor in the more conservative parts of the country. But there seems to be much that may be said in its favor as a conservation measure. A correspondent who attended the recent Western livestock meeting in Calgary has written that the farmers of the Staveland district with whom he talked are all agreed that the bylaw is a good one.

There is really nothing cruel about hanging a small bell by a ribbon or strap around a cat's neck, any more than there is in putting a collar with a dangling license plate around the neck of a dog. Many smart tabbies now wear a collar with a dangling license plate in any case.

It is only natural, then, that Alberta's Turner Valley should be attracting attention far beyond the boundaries of Canada. Within the past two years the field has sprung into existence a crude oil output was virtually nil to what is now the second largest crude oil field in the British Empire.

Large Crowd Celebrates at South Side Park—Dr. Morgan Oldest Liberal in Attendance

The Liberal basket picnic at the South Side Athletic Grounds Wednesday drew plaudits from the large crowd that thronged the grandstand and witnessed a varied program of sports events.

From the moment the picnic began at 2:30 p.m. until dusk began to gather slowly over the field, the stream of visitors for the fun fest never slackened.

The program was dedicated entirely to sports, games, dancing and music. There were no speeches at the festival.

MORGAN OLDEST LIBERAL
Prizes to the various contest winners were presented by Mrs. James A. MacKinnon, Mrs. J. H. Tremblay, Liberal M.L.A. for Grande Prairie, and Mrs. J. H. Tremblay, Liberal M.L.A. for Grande Prairie, and Mrs. J. H. Tremblay, Liberal M.L.A. for Grande Prairie.

Similar recognition was accorded to Mrs. Butley, who came all the way from Fort Simpson to be the prize for the Liberal contest for the longest distance to attend the picnic.

OLD LADIES' TREAT
Coach of Mrs. Laurette Carrigan's winning team was Alderman Hugh John Macdonald, while Al. George Campbell acted as adviser to the ladies.

Interest in the picnic remained intense during the afternoon. Not even a fire could compete with it.

CHAPTER XI
A BOLT slid and a key turned. The door opened a crack. An automatic held in a right hand shot out. And the eyes of the hero, who was to be the alter ego of the "brilliant" hero, were fixed on the door.

"Well, you big bum," she said, "it's about time you got back. Now, no more, said the Weaver, 'I'll take it. I was held up on my honeymoon.'"

"Yeah," Gacy began chomping on a piece of gum that she had thoughtfully kept in her mouth. "Well, you're not a gum-chomper, are you?"

"Just a crane egg, I picked up," said the Weaver. "I'll tell you in a minute."

"The Weaver made a deprecatory remark. 'You don't understand, Gacy. You're a little bit of a...'"

"Yeah," said Gacy. "Monkey business. Some day, Ed Weaver, you're going to get me in trouble more often. And I'm going to get you in trouble more often."

BOMB KILLS 21 IN RACIAL DISTURBANCE

Jerusalem, July 7.—A bomb explosion in the business center of Haifa followed by a running gun battle between Jews and Arabs Wednesday killed at least 21 persons and wounded 60 others.

Race rioting broke out during the evening rush hour when crowds were hurrying home. Witnesses said that after the bomb exploded police constables opened fire on the rioting crowds, causing a majority of the casualties.

One of the victims was Tuvia Dornic, 35, well known contractor, son-in-law of Dr. Chaim Meiselman, president of the British Zionist Federation. Official figures said 18 Arabs and three Jews were killed.

BRITISH ROAT MEN OPPOSE FRANCO'S PLAN

Almeria Port Claimed Too Small To Accommodate Ships

LONDON, July 7.—A communique issued Wednesday night by the committee of British shipping trading in Spain, expressed the opinion Almeria, proposed by General Franco as the one port in Gibraltarian waters which would be immune from insurgent air raids, is inadequate in size, poorly equipped, and too close to the actual hostilities.

Prime Minister Chamberlain is expected to make a statement to the House of Commons today on his government's attitude to the proposed port. The proposal to use Almeria, on the southern coast, a safe port, has advanced after repeated protests against aerial bombardment of British merchant vessels carrying goods to Government Spain.

SMALLEST PORT
Almeria, the shipping men's port, is the smallest of the seven ports in Government Spain. It is "every way unsatisfactory."

It has maximum accommodation for seven vessels, the committee continued. "There is no refrigeration. There are very limited storage tanks for oil. Geographically Almeria is nearer to the front line than any other first-class port in Spanish government territory."

There are at present about 45 British vessels discharging in Spanish ports, many of which are over 1,000 tons. At best it would be possible to accommodate only one or two in Almeria.

20 vessels are due within the next fortnight, so that if Almeria were made the only safe port, only one-seventh of the British shipping in Spain could be accommodated.

CHAMBERLAIN SILENT
In the House of Commons Wednesday, Mr. Chamberlain declined to name a date on which he would expect foreign troops to be out of Spain. He also declined to fix a date for putting into effect Great Britain's Easter friendship treaty with Italy.

Tells London Parley Race Persecution Is Menace To Freedom

By WERN MILLER
British Union Free Press, exclusive cable to The Edmonton Bulletin.
LONDON, July 7.—Anti-Semitism is the brother of anti-Christianism and "hated for the Jew is only the first step in the struggle of neo-paganism against all monotheistic religions," Rabbi Joseph H. Hertz said recently at the opening of the conference of the British Jewish community.

Rabbi Hertz is chief rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregations of the British Empire.

SADISTIC ORIGES
"Crucifixion of the Jew in Nazi Germany and orgy of sadism of which he was the victim in Austria constituting an assault not only on the Jews but on the basic principles of human freedom and civilization," he said.

"They are not allowed to leave Austria. They are deprived of work. They are left to starve because the Nazis regard them as the natural solution for the Jew. This is the worst of all."

Uncle Felix Is Home From Own Funeral

Placed as a pious, bewildered Felix "Bush" Breznalee has himself in front of the coffin, which he built himself and enjoys the eulogy as a minister preaches his "funeral." Bush ordered the ceremony held at a little church in Kingston, Tenn., on his 74th birthday as there would be no question of a preacher doing things wrong about him after he died. More than 8,000 people gathered for the occasion.

Uncle Felix Is Home From Own Funeral

KINGSTON, Tenn., July 7.—Uncle Felix "Bush" Breznalee has resumed the job of tending his hillside farm with the aid of a 17-year-old mule, happy in the knowledge that his "funeral" had been a great success.

Bush ordered the ceremony held at a little church in Kingston, Tenn., on his 74th birthday as there would be no question of a preacher doing things wrong about him after he died. More than 8,000 people gathered for the occasion.

FARMING SET AGAINST NAVY IN HOUSE TILT

LONDON, July 7.—The government is determined to aid domestic agriculture to the fullest extent, but farming preachers of the United Kingdom must ultimately depend upon supremacy of the Royal Navy, Prime Minister Chamberlain told in a parliamentary debate last night.

The group called upon Mr. Chamberlain at the House of Commons to seek an explanation of a dispatch claiming his speech at Kingston, Saturday, in which he warned any attempt by Great Britain to control the sea would be made by force.

That was my last," he said. "When I die I don't want anything. I want to be buried in the ground and I want to be buried in the ground."

Uncle Felix, as he is widely known, arrived at the scene of the service in a hearse and after a short walk with the pallbearers, all of whom he knew, he was laid to rest in the ground.

The service ended, Uncle Felix shook hands with thousands of people who came to see him. He explained that he had never married because he couldn't get a woman who would be as good as he was. He said, "I want to be buried in the ground and I want to be buried in the ground."
